Israel rocked again

A Tomahawk cruise missile launch lights the night sky and the deck of the U.S.S. Wisconsin early Friday. The Wisconsin has launched more than 100 Tomahawks against Iraqi positions.

Tel Aviv suffers 2nd hit

IN SAUDI ARABIA (AP) — Iraqi missiles hit the Tel Aviv area this morning for the second time in two days, U.S. and Israeli officials said. Afterward, the roar of jets, apparently Israeli warplanes, was heard over Tel Aviv.

Even as the missiles struck Israel, waves of U.S. warplanes streaked north through dawn skies from Saudi Arabia, seeking out mobile Iraqi missile launchers in an all-out effort to prevent more Scud attacks on Israel and a widened war.

Baghdad radio, monitored in Jerusalem, interrupted its broadcast with a statement saying: "This moment, we are launching 11 missiles at the enemy."

In Washington, a Defense Department official speaking on condition of anonymity, said three missiles were launched from western Iraq toward Israel. The official had no information on where the missiles landed.

It was not yet clear what

Israeli jets dispatched after latest assault

JERUSALEM (AP) — Missiles slammed into Tel Aviv for a second day today, and Israeli jets took off shortly after the attack.

The blasts came a day after Iraqi missiles hit the coastal cities of Tel Aviv and Haifa, injuring a dozen people.

Unconfirmed police reports indicated there were at least five hits today, though some residents said they heard 10 blasts. There was no immediate word on whether the missiles carried chemical warheads, and no immediate word of casualties.

A missile attack warning siren wailed over the country at 7:20 a.m. (12:20 a.m. EST). The army spokesman, Brig. Gen. Nachman Shai, urged citizens over state radio to put on gas masks and rush to a sealed room as protection against a chemical attack.

Belleville woman can't stay away from painful war news

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the fourth story in an occasional series of how a Belleville woman whose son is stationed in Saudi Arabia with Operation Desert Storm copes with her son's absence and his nearness to danger.

By CHRIS RIZK
Press Staff Writer

Day Three of the Gulf War.

First the television was on, then off Friday morning. She tried to keep busy but ended up stationing herself in front of the set again to catch the news about the war against Iraq.

The only problem with that routine, 41 hours after it began, said Belleville mother Jolene Wilkins, is that "I keep hearing things I don't want to hear."

Wilkins' son, 23-year-old John Tomlinson, is in the 82nd Airborne Division of the U.S. Army. He is stationed in Saudi Arabia, awaiting orders to begin the second phase of the war — land combat.

Wilkins tried to concentrate on other activities Thursday night. When she finally fell to sleep on her living room couch, she awoke to find out that Iraq had launched Scud missiles at Israel.

"It just shows you how much can happen in 45 minutes," she said.

Like other military mothers, Wilkins, 43, can't be away from the television for long. Any moment could bring news of further activity, activity that could signal American ground troop movement into Iraq.

"My behavior lately has been kind of uncertain," she said. "Yesterday, I was pacing the house. I was absolutely miserable."

She may join a support group, she said. Anything to take her mind off every moment of the war and where she can share treasured memories of her son.

She's a concerned, loving mother, she said. News of the first casualty caused her to cry for the family. "My heart went out to the parents," she said. "I don't know how it feels first-hand, but I know the next feeling to it."

Bush suggests that Americans brace for losses

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush tried Friday to steel Americans for losses sure to come in the Persian Gulf, cautioning that "war is never cheap or easy." He said unprovoked missile attacks against Israel prove that no neighbor of Iraq is safe.

The administration desperately hoped to keep Israel out of the war, fearing that a retaliatory strike from the Jewish state would drive away the Arab countries in the military coalition against Saddam Hussein.

"This man is not going to pull a victory off by trying to wage terrorist attacks against a country that is not a participant in all of this, and I'm talking about Israel," Bush told a news conference before leaving for a three-day weekend at Camp David, Md.

Pledging to protect Israel, Bush promised "the darnedest search and destroy mission that's ever been undertaken" to knock out Iraq's mobile missile force. Regardless of what happens, Bush said, "This coalition is not going to fall apart."

Bush discussed the issue of retaliation in a telephone call with Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir. White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater said Bush told the Israeli leader "he basically appreciated their restraint and asked for their understanding."

The president also talked by phone for 45 minutes with Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev and spoke with Canadian Prime Minister Brian Mulroney. Fitzwater said he had no information on the Bush-Gorbachev conversation.

The administration believes Israel probably will strike back immediately if attacked again, one official said, speaking on condition of anonymity.

Egypt signaled it would not bolt the coalition if Israel retaliated. "Don't worry about it," said Egyptian Ambassador Sayed el-Reedy.

Bush said Operation Desert Storm was proceeding

Veterans, AA residents back troops

By JIM KISE
Press Staff Writer

ANN ARBOR — Matt Ferguson brought a bag of muffins to the demonstration.

From across the street, the manager of Afternoon Delight, a restaurant on East Liberty, saw the rally in front of the Federal Building Friday to support troops in the Middle East.

"I came over because we like their sign; we support the troops." Ferguson said.

A crowd of almost 100 marched, sang the national anthem and cheered U.S. military personnel in the Middle East.

What started as a impulsive idea Wednesday drew the kind of media coverage organizers wanted to let troops know there are people here who support them.

"We know what it's like to be in a foreign land without support," said Ypsilanti Township resident Al Merritt, a Vietnam veteran and member of the Washtenaw County Chapter of Vietnam Veterans of America.

Chapter President Milt Davis and Memorial Committee Chairman John Kinzinger started the rally Wednesday, after deciding they had seen enough anti-war protesters covered in the media.

"I'm glad to see so many people show up on such short notice," Davis said as the rally broke up.

Dear Abby

Lindbergh's flight marked two events

DEAR ABBY: It is a little-known fact that not one but two major historical events took place when Charles Lindbergh made his amazing non-stop solo flight from New York to Paris in 1927.

I am enclosing a newspaper article from the Minneapolis paper reporting both events. There are pictures showing Lindbergh being greeted by Myron T. Herrick, who was our ambassador to France at the time, and a picture of "Lindy" proudly standing beside his little silver plane, "The Spirit of St. Louis."

Over those pictures was the following headline: "One Triumph of Science Is Used to Tell of Another." Then it goes on to say: "The transmission of pictures by radio, the most recent major triumph of science, was employed to rush these pictures to the U.S.A. from Paris. They were sent by airplane from Paris to London, then sent by radio to New York, then relayed westward over telephone wires!"

Perhaps you and your readers will find this interesting.

— JOHN E. RALLS, MINNEAPOLIS

DEAR MR. RALLS: Thank you for a little-known piece of history. I wonder how many people were aware that these two major historical events were so closely related. I wasn't.

DEAR ABBY: In the past, you have put in a good word for many people who depend on "tips" to make ends meet. Will you please remind your readers that the rapidly growing number of pizza deliverers also need your help?

"Free delivery" of pizza — and other food delivered to your door — simply means that the company doesn't charge more for their product when it's delivered than if you were served in the restaurant, or carried it home yourself.

The person who delivers your pizza must use his (or her) own car and is paid minimum wage plus a small compensation for gas.

Some people offer no tip at all, and others think a dollar is a generous tip. Actually, any amount is better than nothing, but a tip of between 10 percent and 15 percent is appropriate. Think of it this way: A waiter or waitress carries your food from the kitchen to your table, and the pizza carrier has to drive several miles to get to you.

— BOB IN GLENDALE, ARIZ.

DEAR BOB: Thank you for waking up a few million people.

DEAR ABBY: A couple of my co-workers and I have been involved in a dispute lately that only you can settle.

It seems that I read in your column about the way a bride wears her wedding ring. Question: Should the engagement ring go on first and then the band — or vice versa?

Please settle this so we can go back to work in peace!

— GAYLA IN LITTLE ROCK

DEAR GAYLA: The wedding band should go on first (so it's closer to the heart), then the engagement ring.

Sally Field threatened, hires bodyguard

Actress Sally Field has hired a bodyguard after receiving threats apparently inspired by her starring role in the controversial film "Not Without My Daughter."

FIELD

The Oscar-winning actress decided to hire protection "because of the times we're in right now," her publicist, Pat Kingsley, said. "We felt it might be wise."

In the movie released Jan. 11, Field plays the American wife of an Iranian-born physician who deceives her and their daughter into making a trip to his homeland. While there, she finds herself held hostage.

Details and the nature of the threats weren't disclosed by Kingsley.

Imprisoned singer disapproves of music

James Brown doesn't beat around the bush when he gives his opinion of today's tunes.

"Over the last seven or eight years I have been disgusted with the music," Brown told the Aiken (South Carolina) Kiwanis Club. "I always say don't play any music you wouldn't play for your mother.

"Some of today's music you wouldn't play for anyone. It's time to go back to basics."

Brown spoke to the club as part of his duties at the Lower Savannah Work Release Center. He's serving a six-year prison term for aggravated assault, failure to stop for police and weapons violations. He's scheduled to meet with the parole board Feb. 27.

"I want you to know that James Brown thinks about more than just singing and dancing," he said. "During my last episode of problems, I thought the world had turned against me, but through it all, with the faith of a mustard seed, I found the chance to get out in the community and do something else positive."

Hunter says war news devastating, fascinating

Actress Holly Hunter, Swedish director Lasse Hallstrom and producers Amy Robinson and Griffin Dunne were on hand to kick off the 1991 Sundance Film Festival, which runs through Jan. 27 in Salt Lake City.

The festival opened with a somber mood as attention centered on developments in the Persian Gulf.

"Everyone feels awkward," Hunter said before her new film, "Once Around," opened the festival spotlighting independent filmmakers.

Hunter, who portrayed a network news producer in "Broadcast News," said she'd had "a real urge to call ('Broadcast News' director) Jim Brooks all day."

"Apart from the devastation, it's been fascinating to watch the networks cover the story."

Richard Dreyfuss, Danny Aiello and Gena Rowlands also act in "Once Around," billed as a bittersweet comedy about a Boston family disrupted when an obnoxious, rich man woos one of the daughters.

WASHINGTON — President Bush praises the U.S. military performance against Iraq but says he's concerned about the "initial euphoria" from apparently successful air strikes. "This effort will take some time," and there will be more American casualties, he says. He lauds Israel for not immediately retaliating for Iraqi missile strikes.

WASHINGTON — U.S.-led warplanes stepped up a "needle-in-the-haystack" search for Iraq's mobile SCUD missiles in an attempt to prevent any further attacks on Israel or Saudi Arabia, military officials say.

WASHINGTON — A U.S. Patriot missile destroyed an Iraqi missile roaring toward Americans in Saudi Arabia. Cruise missiles pass their first battle test with flying colors. Stealth fighters streak in and out "before the antiaircraft even comes on." It's part of the much-advertised but previously unproven American advantage in high-tech weaponry.

PHILADELPHIA — The first portion of a $150 million loan was paid into a city account Friday afternoon, ending for now the threat of payless paydays that has haunted employees of cash-strapped Philadelphia. The move came after the Pennsylvania attorney general changed his mind about blocking a loan from state teacher pension funds.

IN SAUDI ARABIA — Israel holds its lethal fire and lets the Desert Storm alliance, with one-a-minute air strikes, search out Iraqi launchers that could terrorize the Jewish state with more missile attacks. The Iraqis say they will put captured American pilots on display. In the northern Saudi desert, ground forces of the U.S.-led coalition wheel and maneuver close to the Kuwait and Iraq frontiers.

TEL AVIV, Israel — Israelis go to bed fearing another nighttime Iraqi missile barrage, and the government says it is still weighing whether to retaliate or wait for U.S. forces to eliminate the threat. Air raid sirens wailed again Friday night, but military officials said it was a false alarm.

NICOSIA, Cyprus — Iraq said Friday its missile attack on Israel was in revenge for Arab suffering, and a Cabinet minister predicted allied forces would shed "rivers of blood" in a long Persian Gulf war.

Evening Optimist President Bill McCloud and member Frank Dugas told me their Annual Christmas Tree Sale was a great success, netting a total of $3,000, which will continue funding their "Just Say No" drug program, in our Ypsilanti and Willow Run schools. I understand, a special note of thanks should go to Dan Quirk, for his generous loan of the lot, where the sale was held. ... Nice going, fellows!!!!

I had a call from Superior Jaycee President Paula Guthie, and was happy to learn that she would present two American flags at a special ceremony at the Administration office of the Willow Run Schools, at 11 a.m. Wednesday. Principals from the Cheney and Ford elementary schools, Mel Anglin and Marg Becker, will accept the flags for use at their schools. Willow Run Schools Superintendent Youssef Yomtoob and Lincoln-Mercury dealer Joe Sesi have been invited to this significant program. ...Nice going, Superior Jaycees!!!

I was happy to have received the Willis Whistler this past week; this is the bulletin of the Willis Kiwanis Club. I spoke to Paul Hansen, their secretary, and learned that the club was first organized in 1950 and have always met for their weekly meetings at the Lincoln Community United Methodist Church on Whittaker Road. The Tuesday meeting included dinner and a talk by Bob Parson, communication representative from the state Department of Transportation on the "Adopt a Highway." I have been invited to their Feb. 12 meeting to hear a talk on national conservation by Douglas Wilcox. I am always glad to hear from our many clubs. Thanks, Paul!!!

Now here is a novel project..When members of the Ladies Literary Club meet on Wednesday, they will be sewing 45 baby layettes for the Needlework Guild. President Marlene Barr explained that this project is part of the "Margurite Smith Social Service Work," as she was the person who first organized it. Her husband, Andy Smith, has donated funds, so it may continue. Nice legacy for a deceased member...

I was the guest of Rotarian Charles Soule at the Appreciation Luncheon hosted by the Salvation Army, as their way of expressing thanks to members of the Rotary and Kiwanis Clubs for having manned their kettles during the holiday. This yearly project was chaired by Bill Anhut and Alvin Joslyn and brought in more donations than any past year. According to Army Captain Cindy Shellenberger, the net total of $10,494.37, amounted to one third of all the kettle donations.

A traveling trophy, handcrafted and donated by the late Don Porter, will be inscribed with the name of this year's winner, being the Kiwanis Club. Quoting Rotary President Bill Dixon: "it was a common cause and a lot of fun."

Way to go fellows...

Area groups offer ways to cope with war

By CHRIS RIZK
Press Staff Writer

War tension brings stress, both in battle regions and here at home, where civilians can find it difficult to concentrate on daily activities or even sleep.

Families with loved ones overseas can find it particularly difficult to deal with their anxiety, caused by concern for the troops. Support groups, which began springing up before war began in the Persian Gulf, are encouraging families to attend sessions.

While U.S. forces are "performing bravely and effectively," according to President Bush, others on the homefront may find difficulty in dealing with events so far out of their control.

"You realize you just have to leave it up to God," said one mother.

According to the American Red Cross in Ann Arbor, which provides information about local groups, there is no official way of starting a group.

Organizers of support groups say families can find comfort and talk out problems by meeting with others in similar situations.

Counselors and psychologists say talking out problems during crises can help manage fear.

Rosalyn Barkley, head of Eastern Michigan University's counseling department, said groups serve a three-fold purpose: they can act as a catharsis, provide insight, understanding and information and lead to acceptance from group members.

"Sometimes, just anothers presence can provide support," Barkley said. "It can release a great burden."

Barkley also said, though, that not everyone needs to talk about their problems.

Listening during group discussions can be cathartic.

"I never require anyone in my support groups to talk," she said.

The following is a list of support groups:

■ The Yellow Ribbon Support Group, co-founded by Judy Norris and Charlene Harris, meets 7 p.m. Thursday at United Auto Workers Local 898 at 8975 Textile Road, east of Whittaker Road, in Ypsilanti Township. For information, call 482-8320.

■ The Northville Chapter of the Michigan Military Family Support Group meets 7:30 p.m. Friday at St. Paul's Lutheran Church at 201 Elm St. in Northville Township. For information, call 349-0996

■ The Chelsea Support Group meets at 9 p.m. Saturday at the Chelsea Community Hospital Dining Room A at 775 S. Main in Chelsea. For information, call 475-1311.

■ The American Red Cross is offering its building at 2729 Packard Road in Ann Arbor for support meetings. The group meets at 7 p.m. Tuesdays. For information, dial 971-5300 and leave a message for Charlene Harris.

ANN ARBOR — The Washtenaw County Pro-Life Coalition dined and learned Friday night to mark the anniversary of the 1973 U.S. Supreme Court decision which legalized abortion on demand.

The coalition held its annual Pro-Life dinner at the Regent on Plymouth Road on the day of the Roe v. Wade verdict.

"We wanted to do something uplifting for right-to-lifers (on the anniversary of this decision)," said Therese Williams, founder of the Pro-Life Coalition and chairperson of the local chapter of Catholics United for the Faith. "Abortion is a grisly business and it's not fun. We wanted to put on this dinner to have a good time and learn something as well ... the event is meant to be educational."

The coalition, said Williams, was started six years ago in an effort to bring prominent pro-life speakers to the Ypsilanti/Ann Arbor area.

"We (pro-life organizations) wanted to bring in a nationally-known speaker, but were so small as individual groups that we decided to get together and put on this dinner," said Williams. "We're a real loose federation of pro-life groups and this is the main thing we do."

In past years the organization has brought in such names as the Rev. Paul Marx, from Human Life International; Alissa Drogin, founder of Sidewalk Counseling; and Joe Scheidler, director of the Pro-Life Action League.

This year, the coalition hosted Randy Engel, author of "Sex Education: The Final Plague," and director of the U.S. Coalition for Life. She addressed the issue of sex education in schools during her presentation at the dinner.

Engel is controversial even within the pro-life movement, Williams said.

"She is espousing total elimination of sex education within school; she believes the subject should be addressed one-on-one, preferably parent to child, not within a classroom setting ... but not everyone in the pro-life movement has agreed that's where we should be."

Tamara Hubbard, an Ypsilanti resident who has been active in the Pro-Life Coalition and Right to Life, expressed anticipation before the dinner.

"I've attended all of the dinners and they've always had impressive speakers," she said. "Our speakers seem to be pretty controversial ... but they always leave you with thinking to do."

Peter Thomason of Ypsilanti moderated the dinner.

Thomason, who has been involved in the pro-life movement since 1973 and is the principal founder of Washtenaw County Operation Rescue, said that within the last few years he has seen a greater openness toward the Catholic position on birth control and sex education among non-Catholics within the pro-life movement.

"We don't all totally agree yet, but we're getting there," he said.

A videotape of the Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.'s 1963 "I have a dream" speech in Washington, D.C. was played Friday at Parkridge Community Center for area children. The program was designed to educate the children about the accomplishments of the late civil rights leader.

King remembered in march, youths' quiz

By MARK HUGGER
Press Staff Writer

Organizers say Monday's march through Ypsilanti will symbolize a recommitment to the concepts, programs and ideas that the Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. taught.

"We want to emphasize the positive over the negative this year," organizer Rev. Levon Yuille said. "The cries of racism have created an atmosphere that prevents people from sitting down and discussing their problems."

The 5th Annual Martin Luther King Jr. Freedom and Brotherhood march begins at 11 a.m. Monday at Michigan Avenue and Hamilton Street, Yuille said. It ends at Brown Chapel A.M.E., 401 S. Adams, where Ypsilanti historian A.P. Marshall will speak to marchers.

Yuille said he hopes that during the coming year whites and blacks in the Ypsilanti-area can let down their guards and work together. "King cared about the color of a person's heart, not the color of their skin," Yuille said.

"When all a black kid hears is negative, he begins to believe it. When all a white kid hears is negative, he becomes defensive," said Yuille. "These attitudes undermine our ability to work together."

"There are already a lot of people trying to reach out to each other, people who aren't highlighting negative statistics. We know there are problems, but let's highlight the positive," Yuille said.

EMU appointee says job 'wonderful surprise'

By JOHN MULCAHY

Gov. John Engler's first appointee to the Eastern Michigan University Board of Regents said Friday she is excited about the appointment.

"I think it's a wonderful surprise and I'm looking forward to being on the board," said Gayle Thomas, 34, a Dearborn dentist who also teaches at the University of Detroit School of Dentistry.

Thomas' appointment is for eight years.

An unsuccessful Republican candidate last fall for the state House of Representatives' seat from Dearborn, Thomas said she is particularly interested in graduate school affairs.

"I think the governor is drawing from my graduate school experience," said Thomas, who also attended the University of Michigan-Dearborn, where she was editor of the student newspaper, the Michigan Journal, and served on the advisory boards for university relations and student affairs.

Thomas said her brother attended EMU.

Thomas replaces Regent William Simmons, whose term ended Dec. 31, as did that of Regent Geneva Titsworth. Engler must also find someone to fill the seat vacated last February when Regent Donald Shelton resigned to become a Washtenaw County Circuit Court judge.

Engler spokesman John Truscott said last week that all the appointments would come before the board meets Jan. 30 to elect officers. Board Chairman John Burton has said he will hold the meeting whether or not all the new trustees are appointed.

Thomas said she will have to study EMU affairs before she decides what she wants to do as a regent. The former candidate for the Legislature said she applied for some role in the Engler administration.

"I think many of the people who were in the campaign would like to play a role in (Engler's) administration," she said.

Hotels to give breaks for VA patients' families

By STEPHEN GOLDSTEIN
Press Staff Writer

ANN ARBOR — The members of the Washtenaw County Hotel and Motel Association unanimously voted Thursday morning to provide special discount rates for the relatives of any patients brought to the Veterans Administration Medical Center from battle in the Persian Gulf.

"We unilaterally pledged our full support and cooperation in this matter," David J. Steiner, president of the association, wrote Thursday to Michael A, Herbert, acting director of the Department of Veterans Affairs at the VA Medical Center, 2215 Fuller Road.

In at least one unidentified establishment, a $90 fee for a single room would be reduced to $55 for up to four persons in the room, said Cindy Lees, public affairs specialist for the medical center, which has 227 acute-care beds and a 100-bed nursing home.

Through arrangements with the Ann Arbor Convention and Visitors Bureau, the Hotel and Motel Association agreed to the discounts, Lees said.

"The outpouring here has really been wonderful," she said.

The medical center staff also has prepared family packets with information about Ann Arbor to send by overnight mail to families whose relatives would come to the medical center for treatment, she said.

Family dog helps occupants flee Pittsfield fire

PITTSFIELD TWP. — The family dog awoke a Pittsfield Township family at 1:19 a.m. Monday and alerted the occupants in time to safely escape a fire that began in their garage and spread to part of the house at 5444 Crane Road.

The fire caused an estimated $65,000 damage to property and contents, according to a township police report, but no one was injured.

Shortly after 10 a.m. Monday, quick use of a small household fire extinguisher prevented a kitchen fire from spreading at 1241 S. Grove Road, Ypsilanti Township, said Fire Capt. Paul Wagner.

A couple and their children escaped injury, but the husband put out the fire before firefighters arrived.

The fire damaged the stove and the hood over the oven, and smoke and heat damaged the cabinets, Wagner said.

Teen wounded after YHS game

In a nearly-empty portion of the Ypsilanti High School parking lot, far away from students dancing in the cafeteria after Friday's basketball game, a 19-year-old former student suffered a superficial gunshot wound to his stomach.

Washtenaw County Sheriff's Department Sgt. Brian Miller said deputies heard gunshots about 10 p.m. in the parking lot near Packard Road. A car was leaving the lot when the shots rang out, Miller said, but deputies had no one in custody for the shooting Friday night.

The youth, who was cut on the stomach, walked unassisted with deputies to the athletic office inside the building. Huron Valley Ambulance medics looked at the wound there before taking him to Beyer Hospital, where he was treated and released.

Students probably didn't realize a shooting had occurred, YHS Principal John Fulton said, despite seeing the victim enter and leave the office.

Six deputies and six security guards worked the basketball game. There was no disturbance before shots were fired, Miller said. Despite having deputies close to the shooting, they couldn't have prevented it, he said.

The victim had attended the Ypsilanti-Ann Arbor Pioneer basketball game, won by Ypsilanti, 78-64.

Young asks for Guard troops

DETROIT (AP) — Mayor Coleman Young asked Gov. John Engler on Friday to assign Michigan National Guard troops to help guard the city, augmenting already strained police resources.

Detroit's location on the U.S.-Canadian border, coupled with its high numbers of Arab-Americans, has heightened security concerns, Young said in a statement.

Young made the request in writing to Engler and then spoke with the governor Friday afternoon by telephone, mayoral spokesman Bob Berg said.

Lt. Col. Brian Downey, a Guard spokesman, said Engler would base his decision on a recommendation from the Emergency Management Division of the state police. Robert Nelson, a state police spokesman, said Engler wouldn't receive a recommendation before Saturday morning.

Fire guts Pittsfield body shop

By EMILY CHURCH
Press Staff Writer

PITTSFIELD TWP. — Fire gutted a $150,000 township auto body repair shop Friday at 4597 Platt Lane, about 200 feet from the basement remains of a similar warehouse structure that burned to the ground last summer.

The afternoon fire erupted in a spray paint booth, the likely combination of dry paint chemicals and welding sparks, said Richard Kramer, owner of Kramer Collision.

No injuries were reported.

Township firefighters, joined by the Ypsilanti, Saline and Ann Arbor departments, doused the blaze in about an hour. The fire was easily stopped from spreading to neighboring businesses within the large warehouse because of fire walls in the shared attic space, township Fire Marshal Jim Dayeur said.

"It was just a lot of smoke, a tremendous amount of black smoke," said George Shepherd, who owns GMC Tool Co. next to the auto shop.

Shepherd doubled his fire insurance after the first fire this summer.

"I don't know what's going on with this strip," Dayeur said. The fire department has responded to about four calls in the small, light industrial area in the last 10 years.

Kramer was not insured. He said he could not afford the $1,800 to $2,500 monthly product liability and fire insurance bills.

A Pittsfield Township Firefighter gasps for a breath of fresh air Wednesday after being covered by falling insulation while fighting a fire at Kramer Collision in the township.

"We're going to clean it up and see if we can rebuild," Kramer said. "Hopefully we can start today, if they finish soon."

The fire is still under investigation, Dayeur said.

Rally

Township and first vice president of the state VVA, said the state VVA official position is to support troops in the Persian Gulf so "never again will our troops be putting their lives on the line and feel they don't have support of the people back home."

Veterans said supporting troops did not mean supporting the war.

Bill Feight is an Ypsilanti Township resident whose sales job keeps him on the road, but drove back from Jackson Friday to march in the rally.

"We're not going to let people come back from a combat zone and feel like they're unwelcome," said Feight, a Vietnam veteran.

Not everyone who marched was a Vietnam veteran. Mothers from the Yellow Ribbon Support group at United Auto Workers Local 898 helped fill the ranks, along with a number of Ann Arbor residents.

"I feel we should back our country and the decision to fight for what we believe in," said 16-year-old Brian Nourse, a student at Pioneer High School in Ann Arbor.

From Whitmore Lake, Cheryl Fox came wearing a sweatshirt that proclaimed, "My love is with the troops in Operation Desert Storm."

Fox's son, 20-year-old Neil Brady is on the U.S.S. Midway in the Persian Gulf.

"I'm here because I'm tired of the flag-burning," Fox said.

Another troop-support rally is scheduled for noon today, at the University of Michigan Diag.

Jets

Immediately after the explosions, the roar of jets was heard over Tel Aviv. During the night, three air attack sirens stirred the Israelis from their sleep. All three previous alarms turned out to be false. The last of them was heard at 4:50 a.m. (0250 gmt), and an all-clear signal was sounded about 45 minutes later.

Shai said the third alarm was caused by an unexplained explosion on the northern outskirts of Jerusalem.

The first alarm Friday night, heard nationwide, was called off in about half an hour. An army spokesman said officials had believed a missile attack was imminent.

The second alarm, heard only in Tel Aviv early this morning, lasted about five minutes.

It was sounded when people spotted an object with a fiery tail in the sky. The army reported the object was a Soviet satellite that was disintegrating.

In Washington, Pentagon spokesman Pete Williams said the object in the sky was a "Soviet space booster rocket body" that was returning to earth. "It is a piece of space garbage," Williams said.

The Iraqi attack on Israel early Friday came amid the massive air attack on Iraq by the United States and its allies that began Persian Gulf war a day earlier. The allies are seeking to drive Iraq from Kuwait, invaded on Aug. 2.

The Israeli government met Friday to consider retaliation against Iraq but decided not to act immediately. The United States and its allies had urged Israeli restraint to preserve the anti-Iraq coalition.

type of warheads were carried by the missiles that hit today, but Israelis were ordered to don gas masks and take refuge in sealed rooms as protection against possible chemical attack.

An Iraqi missile attack the night before slightly injured a dozen people. The Israeli government held back retaliation at that time — persuaded by promises that American warplanes would try to eliminate Iraqi missile launchers.

American officials had said Iraqi President Saddam Hussein was trying to drag Israel into the Persian Gulf war, and fracture the coalition of Arab states seeking to drive him from Kuwait.

Iraq broadcast a desperate appeal Saturday to Muslims worldwide, telling them there is no longer time for delay and that they have no option but to attack Western interests now.

A statement on Baghdad Radio urged Muslims to attack the "interests, facilities, symbols and figures" of the United States, Britain, France, the Netherlands, Saudi Arabia, the followers of the emir of Kuwait and their allies.

Three more U.S. warplanes were lost in raids against Iraqi targets, and their crews were missing, the Pentagon said Friday. The Baghdad government claimed it had captured American pilots and would later produce them.

A U.S. air chief, meanwhile, predicted a "very strenuous campaign" to finally take control of the skies over Iraq and Kuwait. Only eight "kills" of Iraqi warplanes have been confirmed, the Pentagon said, and low cloud cover was slowing air operations Friday.

Up on the sand-and-gravel plains of northern Saudi Arabia, ground forces of the U.S.-led coalition wheeled and maneuvered close to the Kuwait and Iraq frontiers. Units were being repositioned "for further action," the top U.S. commander said.

Gen. H. Norman Schwarzkopf also said more U.S. amphibious vessels, some presumably loaded with battle-ready Marines, were moving into the Persian Gulf.

Bush

"exceptionally well." However, he said he was concerned about euphoria over the initial success and the weak response from Baghdad.

"We must be realistic," Bush told a news conference. "There will be losses. There will be obstacles along the way. And war is never cheap or easy."

The Pentagon's latest casualty count said four U.S. warplanes and their seven crew members had been lost. U.S.-led forces were flying 2,000 missions daily against Iraq and about 80 percent "have successfully engaged their targets," said Gen. Norman Schwarzkopf, the U.S. commander in Saudi Arabia.

At the Pentagon, Lt. Gen. Thomas Kelly, director of operations for the Joint Chiefs of Staff, said military officials had confirmed the destruction of eight Iraqi aircraft in air-to-air combat, with "a couple of other airplanes suspected damaged, probably on the ground." Iraq's air force is believed to number about 700 planes.

The congressional sources said about 30 Iraqi missile launchers had survived two days of intense bombing attacks.

Senate Intelligence Committee Chairman David Boren, D-Okla., said after an intelligence briefing that the bombing had sharply curtailed Iraq's nuclear weapons program and may have impaired it to the point "of virtual non-existence."

Friday night, the Pentagon announced it was calling up as many as 181 commercial airlines to augment airlift to the Persian Gulf. These are planes the airlines agreed to make available for charter; the Pentgaon already has paid for certain extra equipment like stronger floors. In August, 29 aircraft were taken over under the program.

Bush said the coalition forces had performed "bravely, professionally and effectively."

As protests against the war spread across the nation, Bush sought to reassure the 425,000 U.S. troops in the Persian Gulf.

She's the kind of mother, she said, who spends equal amounts of money on Christmas gifts for her two children. She used to count the jelly beans in Easter baskets just to be fair.

"I love both of my kids equally," she said Friday. "But John's in more immediate danger and I worry more about him now."

To ease her worry, she's been shopping, called her mother in Arizona and visited her best friend.

On Friday, she was doing something that made her feel closest to her son.

She mailed him the first letter since the war began.

After telling him she loved him, she explained the events as they unfolded.

She worries, she said, that the troops may not know what she has been so closely following on her television screen.

And she worries they may know more.

Jordan's parliament denounces allied attacks on Iraq

AMMAN, Jordan (AP) — Jordan's parliament on Friday strongly denounced allied attacks on Iraq and called on Arab and Islamic nations to strike out against the United States and its coalition partners.

It was the strongest official stand taken by Jordan since Iraq invaded Kuwait last August. Jordan has not formally endorsed either side, but has been shown increasing sympathy toward neighboring Iraq.

Throughout the Middle East and North Africa on Friday, Muslim fundamentalists welcomed Iraq's missile attack on Israel and the beginning of what they perceived to be a long-awaited holy war. Israel's Arab neighbors waited tensely to see if the Jewish state would respond.

In Mauritania, soldiers and police fired tear gas to disperse about 20,000 demonstrators chanting "Death to America!" and "Muslims have to defend Iraq!" Tens of thousands of fundamentalists marched in Algeria, demanding the government train volunteers to fight alongside Iraq.

Jordan's parliament voted unanimously in favor of a resolution that branded the allied air assault on Iraq "brutal aggression not only against the brotherly Iraqi people ... but against all Arab and Muslim nations."

Sixty-six of the chamber's 80 members were present for the emergency session.

"We call on all the Arab and the Islamic nations to strike at American interests and the interests of those nations participating in the aggression against Iraq," the resolution said.

It added that the United States "is entering in a fight of its choosing with all Arab and Muslim nations."

The resolution called on the Arab members of the multinational force "to stop this aggression and seek to resolve the crisis within an Arab and Muslim framework."

Foreign Minister Taher Masri, who is a member of parliament but left before the vote, said: "We're not supposed to do this. I don't think it is a wise resolution."

There was no immediate comment from the palace of King Hussein, who has delicately straddled the fence in the gulf conflict.

The resolution was not specific about what it meant by "American interests," but that is the standard phrase used in the Arab world for anything connected to the United States — embassies, institutions, military targets and businesses.

Many residents of Jordan and Syria feared Israeli retaliation for the Iraqi missile attack could bring about the Middle East's fifth Arab-Israeli shooting war in 43 years.

The governments of Egypt, Syria, Saudi Arabia and other gulf states in the coalition against Iraq also worried that Israeli retaliation could split the alliance formed to oust Iraq from Kuwait.

Egyptian Foreign Minister Boutros Ghali said on Radio Monte Carlo he backed the "prudent policy" followed so far by Israel in not retaliating immediately after Friday's missile attack. He said Egypt would remain in the U.S.-dominated alliance even if Israel enters the war.

Saudi U.N. Ambassador Samir Shihabi said, "Any attempt on the part of Israel to inject itself in the picture would be indirectly serving the Iraqi regime's intention, or attempt, to make a linkage between their occupation of Kuwait and the problem of Palestine."

U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar advised the Israeli people and government to be patient and exercise restraint.

But in southern Lebanon, about 15,000 marchers chanted, "Saddam, Saddam, wipe out Israel!" as they paraded through Sidon.

"Its jihad time!" some demonstrators yelled as they set fire to an American flag, an Israeli flag and an effigy of President Bush. Jihad is the Muslim term for a holy war.

"Oh Saddam, use gas! Oh Saddam, use chemicals!" they pleaded.

Palestinian guerrillas in Lebanon fired anti-aircraft guns at Israeli jets flying overhead on a reconnaissance mission. There was no return fire.

During prayers at the Al-Sunna mosque in Algiers' Bab El-Oued neighborhood, Muslim leader Ali Bel Hadj called on the government to open military training camps within two days.

"Otherwise, on the third day, all of Algeria will transform itself into an immense training camp," he said to applause from worshipers.

In Turkey, nearly 2,000 people demonstrated against the U.S.-led coalition Friday, chanting slogans and burning U.S. and Israeli flags.

The protesters, who gathered at the site of a main mosque after prayers, listened to speeches denoncing the gulf war as "an attack by the U.S. and its allies against Moslems" and criticizing Turkey's pro-Western stand.

Israelis keep gas masks at hand

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israelis clogged telephone circuits on Friday, carried gas masks if they ventured outdoors, and fled their homes in threatened Tel Aviv for hotels in Jerusalem.

Iraq's missile barrage on coastal cities early Friday raised anxieties and slowed to a crawl the normal frenetic pace of life in the Jewish state. Air raid sirens wailed again Friday night throughout Israel, warning of a repeat attack and further heightening fears.

Army psychologist Moshe Even-Chen went on national television to assure the jittery public that fear was OK.

"The public is worried," he said. "They have butterflies in their stomachs. ... This is legitimate."

Anxiety could be seen in the vacant streets as most Israelis heeded the government's emergency regulations and stayed home. Few buses and taxis ran.

People short of food made quick forays to grocery stores, almost always with a gas mask slung over the shoulder.

At the Co-op Supermarket in the Jerusalem suburb of East Talpiot, shoppers cleared the shelves of milk and bread.

Julian Nochomovitz, 34, spoke not of fear but of a desire to avenge Friday's attack, the first since Iraqi President Saddam Hussein nine months ago began threatening to hurl chemical warheads at Israel.

"Sitting in my gas mask, I wanted to napalm him," Nochomovitz said. "I wouldn't lose much sleep if he were fried."

Across town, Roy Makov waited in a long checkout line in the Supersol market.

"On one hand, it is tense here," he acknowledged. "On the other hand, there is security."

He said his faith was in the Israeli military, which acts on the premise that "if we don't protect ourselves, no one else will."

The missiles, with conventional warheads, landed in the coastal cities of Tel Aviv and Haifa, slightly injuring 12 people, hospitals said.

Magen David Adom, the national emergency service, said an additional 500 people were treated in their homes or at hospitals for anxiety attacks, heart trouble or injecting themselves unnecessarily with the antidote for nerve gas.

Scores of Tel Aviv families later abandoned their homes and checked into hotels in Jerusalem, which is considered less of a target because it is the site of Islam's sacred Al-Aqsa and Dome of the Rock mosques.

At the Hyatt Regency Hotel in Arab east Jerusalem, bookings increased from 20 to nearly 300 as the day progressed, and both the Jerusalem Hilton and Sheraton were full of Tel Aviv families.

Warplanes look for Scud launchers

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. and allied warplanes are "searching assiduously" for Iraq's mobile missile launchers to cut off Saddam Hussein's ability to attack Israel and other targets in the Persian Gulf war, Pentagon officials said Friday.

Lt. Gen. Tom Kelly told reporters at the Pentagon that allied military officials had confirmed the destruction of eight Iraqi aircraft in aerial combat. Iraq's air force is believed to number about 700 planes, spread through 25 heavily protected bases.

Kelly said four American aircraft were lost and seven crew members listed as missing in action in the first two days of the war. "They all went down behind enemy lines," he added.

"We know of no American prisoners of war at all," he said. He refused to discuss any effort to recover downed pilots.

Kelly disclosed that American troop strength in the war theater stood at 450,000 — an increase of 25,000 since the war began on Wednesday.

"The campaign continues to unfold successfully," said Kelly, a three-star general who appeared in a uniform bearing several rows of ribbons.

However, the general acknowledged that Saddam Hussein appeared to still be in contact and control of his military forces, despite the heavy bombardment of his communication systems, and that the massive U.S. air campaign had not yet won U.S. control of Iraqi airspace.

"I don't know how effective his communication is," Kelly said. "We believe he still is retaining control over elements of his armed forces."

The allied forces' air missions will total 2,107 in the first 48 hours of the military operation designed to force Iraq from Kuwait, the general said in a briefing held for reporters at the Pentagon.

The downed American planes included an F-A-18, two A-6 Intruders and an Air Force F-15E Strike Eagle. The two airmen aboard the one of the A-6 aircraft were identified as: Lt. Robert Wetzel, age 30, and Lt. Jeffrey N. Zaun, age 28.

Kelly said 196 cruise missiles also had been launched against Iraqi targets.

Kelly and Rear Adm. John M. McConnell spoke with reporters after congressional sources said they had been told that military brass had been able to confirm the destruction of just 11 Iraqi aircraft. Others may have been hit when allied forces bombed concrete bunkers, military officials said.

Intelligence sources said Iraq has as many as three hardened bunkers for each warplane in its Air Force. That means attacking allied forces are playing a shell game in which they must bomb three bunkers to be sure of killing one plane.

Gen. Charles Horner, the U.S. Air Force commander in the region, told reporters in Saudi Arabia that "a lot of their aircraft are in hardened shelters. We attack the shelters but we don't know the fate of the aircraft."

Horner said that when Iraqi aircraft are flushed into the air, allied fighters "tend to shoot them down if they persist in the engagement," but that they tend to break off and "flee to the north."

Kelly said the Iraqi Republican Guard — Saddam's elite troops — had been struck. "And they will continue to be struck." Members of Congress were told the Guard was being bombed without letup, according to sources who refused to be identified by name.

Kelly said there was no evidence yet that Iraq had moved its mobile missile launchers into populated areas.

"We are searching assiduously for all the Scud launchers," he said.

Kelly did not say so, but congressional sources who received an administration briefing said the Pentagon believes Iraq had roughly 30 mobile launchers, but it is difficult to determine how many are left.

The effort to wipe out the launchers is designed to choke off Saddam's ability to attack Israel and thus widen the gulf war.

Iraq fired several Scud missiles into Israel in the pre-dawn darkness Friday, and launched one into Saudi Arabia, staging area for the massive allied troop deployment. The Pentagon said a U.S. Patriot missile destroyed that missile in flight.

Gen. Norman Schwarzkopf, commander of the American forces in the war, said earlier in Saudi Arabia that six Iraqi mobile missile launchers, three aimed at Saudi Arabia, were destroyed Friday and that an air barrage was continuing on the five others that had been located.

Bombs ride beams to targets

By Scripps Howard News Service

WASHINGTON — America's bombs have been getting "smarter" ever since Vietnam, with sophisticated guidance systems keeping them on course for miles after they're released from a plane.

The "Star Wars"-like precision of some U.S. bombing runs against difficult Iraqi targets was the result of an array of devices known as "smart weapons."

The weapons' effectiveness was demonstrated to the world Friday when the Air Force released videotape shot by infared cameras mounted on U.S. warplanes engaged in some of the first strikes.

The equipment has the ability to pinpoint a 500- to 2,000-pound bomb on a target as tiny as a ventilation shaft or a garage door-sized bay to a concrete-reinforced bunker.

Getting one "down the stack," so to speak, from a jet flying several miles high and moving at up to two and a half times the speed of sound requires precision equipment handled by experts.

"It has been, in some respects, a technology war, although fought by men and women," said Air Force Lt. Gen. Charles Horner.

Essentially, smart bombs get where they're going in one of three ways: they ride a beam of light to the ground; they watch the target on a television mounted in the nose of the bomb; or they use heat-sensitive devices to find the target.

Even conventional bombs rely on computers that judge airspeed, altitude and angle of approach along with wind speeds and ground features.

"It's not exactly like it was with the old B-17s of World War II where the bombardier had to line up the crosshairs on the bombsite," said Air Force Maj. Richard Cole.

But accuracy for ordinary bombs still depends upon the ability of a pilot to hold course and judge when to release bombs in the face of anti-aircraft fire. Once the bombs are released, only gravity, wind and fortune control where they will land.

Smart bombs don't leave much to chance.

"There are some new planes delivering the weapons, but our development of these guidance systems really goes back to the first laser-guided bombs we experimented with in Vietnam," Cole said.

Each type of guided bomb can adjust course using either small rockets or by adjusting the glide path using winglets or fins.

Moreover, the plane running the guidance system need not necessarily be the same ones dropping the bombs. High flying command planes can direct the payloads of dozens of attack jets.

Laser-guided bombing "really amounts to shining a flashlight on your target and following the reflection of the beam," Cole said. "They're accurate to within a foot of where you aim."

The television-guided bombs work by having the pilot or weapons officer show the target to the camera in the nose and lock on before letting it go.

Church leaders upset by war

NEW YORK (AP) — As the world's eyes fixed on the Middle East, church leaders braced for special aid work, distraught about normal plans but also shaken by events elsewhere and jarred from some usual stances.

While they continued pleas for a speedy turn toward peace in the Mideast, they condemned particular threats of widened violence, and also voiced distress at the Soviet crackdown in the Baltic states.

The World Council of Churches raised an uncustomarily sharp protest over the Soviet military action that killed at least 14 people in Lithuania and it sent sympathies to Soviet churches.

In the past, the council of most of the world's Protestant and Eastern Orthodox denominations has dealt gingerly with Soviet policies, lest it imperil member Soviet churches. This time the reaction was blunt.

From council headquarters in Geneva, the Rev. Emilio Castro, general secretary, telegraphed Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev that "we must protest strongly" the military action in Lithuania.

"At a time when you are seeking a new order in the Soviet Union," the message said, the "use of force can only aggravate the many situations of discord and conflict" and "hinder the processes of reform."

In another shift in church tone, the National Council of Churches' chief executive spoke out in behalf of Israel and against drawing that country into the United Nations-Iraqi conflict.

Although the council previously has stressed concerns for Palestinian independence, the council's general secretary, James A. Hamilton, voiced alarm at Iraq's threat to attack Israel.

Israel "is not a party to the current confrontation" and "has a right to live within secure, defined and recognized borders," he said, saying such an attack would spread suffering and widen an already dangerous conflict.

At the same time, Middle East secretary Dale Bishop said the council's relief arm, Church World Service, had issued an emergency appeal for humanitarian aid for millions of refugees expected in the Mideast.

Moves were initated to set up a crisis team of National Council of Churches staff members, and denominational leaders considered ways to keep in close touch with American pastors and members during a forthcoming meeting in Canberra, Australia.

That once-in-seven years general assembly of the World Council of Churches is only three weeks away, Feb. 7-20.

We need the information in writing — it doesn't have to be typed or formal — along with a phone number. Please send it or drop it off by 5 p.m. Thursday to the Ypsilanti Press, 20 E. Michigan Ave., Ypsilanti, MI 48198.

Church workers quit Mideast

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

To leave, or not to leave. That was a question troubling American church workers in the Middle East as war threatened the region, and they made different choices about it.

None was reported still in Iraq, and U.S. military chaplains were the only church personnel allowed in Saudi Arabia. But elsewhere — Israel, the occupied West Bank and Gaza, and Jordan — the situation was mixed.

This is "where the pressures are felt most strongly," said Dale Bishop, head of the Middle East office of the National Council of Churches. "Some are staying, taking the risks. Others are leaving, hoping to return."

In most cases, home offices were in touch with them, advising about the situation, but the decision was left to individuals.

A check of various denominations indicated that nearly half of about 100 church workers had left or planned to leave the danger zones, while the others were staying. Some moved to Cyprus or Egypt to be close by, and a few returned to the United States.

The situation likely was similar for an additional 200 workers of non-church affiliated religious groups.

Brother Paul Grass, the U.S. regional coordinator for Roman Catholicism's Christian Brothers, said five American members of the order and some American nuns on the teaching staff of Bethlehem University would remain.

"In the absence of any actual, endangering hostilities, they've decided to stay," said Grass, who is based in Romeoville, Ill.

He added that if their situation became untenable, they could flee, perhaps into Egypt. He said church workers in the Mideast stay in contact ecumenically and "watch out for one another."

"They demonstrate a certain amount of trust and resilience," he said.

> A check of various denominations indicated that nearly half of about 100 church workers had left or planned to leave the danger zones, while the others were staying. Some moved to Cyprus or Egypt to be close by, and a few returned to the United States.

About 30 Southern Baptist workers had evacuated the region by early in the week, while about 25 others opted to stay in Israel and its occupied areas and the island of Bahrain in the Persian Gulf. Eighteen others, who operate a hospital in Yemen on the southern end of the Arabian Peninsula, also stayed.

The Rev. Sonny Richardson of Georgetown, S.C., stationed in an Arab sector, told Southern Baptist mission officials in Richmond, Va., by telephone: "I don't intend to be a martyr or a hero. It's just the sense that the Lord would have me here."

Six Southern Baptist workers in Jordan, where they operate two schools and assist Jordanian churches, decided to leave on the advice of Jordanian pastors.

A medical technician, Don Littlejohn of Fort Worth, Texas, stayed at his hopsital post in Bahrain, but his wife, children and a co-worker returned to the United States.

The Christian and Missionary Alliance, based in Colorado Springs, Colo., said about six workers decided to remain in Israel, but six others were leaving Jordan at the request of Jordanian church people.

"We're there to strengthen the church and we listen when it feels that the presence of foreigners would be detrimental," said the Rev. David Volstad of the denomination's overseas missions office. He said any Jordanian violence likely would be "not only anti-Western but anti-Christian."

The Rev. William Wipfler of the Episcopal Church's Middle East office in New York, said six workers in the area, mostly in Israel, had decided to stay, while one had returned under pressure of family anxieties.

"It's an open-ended choice," he said. "They have ministries to fulfill and relate to people where they serve. It's not appropriate for us to sit in New York and order them out."

The Catholic Near East Welfare Association said four American workers were remaining in Jordan, Israel and Lebanon.

Mary Sue Robinson, of the Middle East office of the United Methodist global ministries division, said two workers, one serving disabled children and the other a welfare agency in Israel, had decided to leave. But a worker specializing in Hebrew and the Filipino-American pastor of a Jerusalem congregation, the Rev. Romeo del Rosario, planned to remain.

Phyllis White of the Middle East office of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), based in Louisville, Ky., said the scheduled return to Jerusalem of a church worker had been delayed. "We're waiting to see what happens," she said.

Church officials said many workers in surrounding Middle East countries, such as Egypt, Algeria and Turkey, were remaining at their posts.

Dangers are greater than generally understood

By ANN McFEATTERS

Analysis

WASHINGTON — The danger the Persian Gulf war poses to the Middle East — and to the future security of the West — is far more real than the Bush administration has disclosed to the American public.

To President Bush, war has been inevitable since the Aug. 2 Iraqi invasion of Kuwait.

But the diplomatic moves to prevent a full-scale Middle East war are proving far more delicate — Bush says "sophisticated" — and exhausting than the White House contemplated before Bush decided to attack Iraq as he sat in front of a White House fire last Sunday night.

On Wednesday at 7 p.m. EST, he watched TV in his private study at the White House as the massive aerial bombardment began.

Although the Iraqi attack against Israel has been of no military significance, the political ramifications could tie the president's hands as he tries to create the new world order he so desperately seeks to forge.

Bush emphasized Friday that he has not "written off" Jordan as part of that new order. And he is hopeful that Saudi and Kuwaiti participation in the offensive against Iraq will defuse the Arab-vs.-Israel time bomb that has been ticking since Israel was founded in 1948.

As Bush talked to reporters Friday, his exhausted top advisers, who had been up most of the night dissuading Israel from retaliation, struggled not to yawn. Gaunt and grim, national security adviser Brent Scowcroft sighed and rocked back and forth in fatique.

Getting through the day has become a struggle, let alone planning for the aftermath — a peace that may not be real.

"I do think when this is over we will have some very sophisticated diplomacy to do," Bush said Friday. "But I believe at this point that many people, and most people in the Arab world, understand and approve of what the United Nations tried to do and is trying to do now."

Israeli Defense Minister Moshe Arens was adamant although vague. "We were hit. We will retaliate," he said Friday.

The Israeli ambassador to the United States, Zalman Shoval, unshaven, exhausted and tieless, said after the first attack Thursday night that by hitting "purely civilian targets" in Israel, Iraq had jeopardized the lives of not just of Jews and Israelis but Arabs and Palestinians as well.

But in Jordan, crowds poured into the streets after Iraq's attack on Israel to praise Saddam Hussein as a hero of the Arab world. "We were afraid he was not going to strike back," said a Jordanian youth interviewed on the radio. "Now we are full of joy. He has restored our faith in him."

The White House had always believed Iraq would strike at Israel in an effort to drive a wedge in the fragile 28-nation coalition.

Still, the White House hoped its initial, spectacular blizzard of bombs over Baghdad and military targets in Iraq and Kuwait would knock out missile launchers. Several dozen mobile launchers escaped but were pulverized later by the electronic weaponry that seems, so far, to be working in the first war where technology is the star and viewers on all the home fronts watch it on their televisions.

The real fear at the White House was and remains the use of chemical weapons by Iraq against Israel, whose people remember vividly the use of gas against six million Jews in World War II.

A chemical attack Thursday night could have meant the destruction of Iraq and full-scale Middle East war.

The fear of such an event has lessened but is not gone. Bush said Friday that the attack against Israel, ineffective as it was militarily, might have been a warning. The use of chemicals, he said, is still a threat. The Iraqi ambassador to the United Nations, Abdul Amir al Anbari, said later the use of chemicals is always a possibility in war.

Even without chemicals or a damaging attack on Israel, Senate Republican leader Bob Dole of Kansas said the attack "could seriously change the equation." While he didn't expect the coalition to fall apart — Egypt and Saudi Arabia are convinced Iraq is their enemy more than Israel — Dole said the coalition was seriously strained. The future was not predictable, he said.

Even after the Iraqi attack, there was a residue of euphoria that the modern weapons on which the United States has spent billions of dollars actually worked, that the coalition held together and that a new generation of young, untested American soldiers — women and men — performed "fantastically well," according to their commander, Gen. Norman Schwarzkopf.

"So far, so good," said Bush.

But by the third day of Operation Desert Storm, the realization that the war is just beginning finally sank in around the world. Anti-war demonstrators began to organize in preparation for a long haul.

In Saudi Arabia, Schwarzkopf said, "This is not Panama (the invasion Bush ordered in December 1989 to capture Manuel Noriega). It will not be over in a day."

Fully aware that his words were being broadcast Friday around the world, Schwarzkopf emphasized a key point the Bush administration has sought to make since the deployment of 425,000 Americans to the Gulf: The war, he said, is not against the Iraqi people. "We are doing everything we can to avoid injuring or hurting innocent people," religious shrines and cultural monuments.

As all American commanders-in-chief have done in war, Bush Friday tried to pump up the American people even as he warned them of the difficult days ahead. Liberating Kuwait and restoring order are worthwhile, he insisted.

Bush vowed never to stop fighting until the goal of driving Iraq out of Kuwait has been met. But that means dislodging 545,000 Iraqi soldiers who have had 5-½ months to dig fortifications and merely have to keep the Allies out to win a victory for Saddam.

"It won't be easy," Bush told reporters.

Air Force Gen. Charles Horner, who orchestrated the air attack against Iraq, said the job of dismantling the Iraqi military is "a long, hard task."

And the inevitable ground war, with its potential for high casualties even with the surprise maneuvers American generals have worked out, had not even begun.

'Splitters beat Milan to stay perfect in SEC

By DAVID FRICKMAN
Press Sports Writer

Lincoln fans are taking notice — their boys' basketball team is for real.

In front of a large home crowd Friday, the Railsplitters showed Milan just how real they are, beating the Big Reds 70-61 and moving to 5-0 in the Southeastern Conference.

Lincoln coach Tom Winham said he'll take the win, though the final score was closer than it could have been. Winham said he knew the Big Reds would put up a good fight despite their 1-5 SEC record (1-9 overall).

"I knew how tough Milan could be, but I don't think my players did," he said. "I think we relaxed a little bit at the end."

That allowed Milan to cut what was a 18-point 'Splitter lead to just six, 67-61, when game-high scorer Jim Ross, who had 27 points, hit a 3-pointer with 26 seconds to play. Lincoln held off the rally, however, while hitting three of its final four free throws.

"There's a lot of hoopla around the school," Winham said. "People are talking about Lincoln basketball and I think the players got caught up in it. You've got to keep it in perspective. We're popular because we're winning. But that groundswell dies down when you stop winning."

Lincoln hopes to end the first half of the SAC season undefeated, but it must first beat Pinckney in a make-up game on the road Monday. Milan will host Pinckney next Friday.

Milan fans came in good numbers, too. But what they saw was Lincoln domination on the inside. Ross got his points, but the Railsplitter inside combo of Joe McIntyre and Jamie Jones controlled the boards and combined for 38 points, many on offensive rebounds.

"We would grab the ball and they would take it away," said Milan coach Ron Dingman.

McIntyre had 22 points, Jones added 16 points and Brian Laster added 19 points.

Lincoln's biggest run came in the second quarter. With a 14-13 lead, the 'Splitters went on a 22-11 run, scoring the last seven points of the half to take a 35-24 lead.

A 12-4 run to open the fourth quarter gave Lincoln a 62-44 lead. Then the Big Reds came back, behind 13 fourth-quarter points from Ross, but came no closer than six points.

"We wanted to go at Ross and get him off the floor, but he was up for it," Winham said.

Milan has had trouble getting scoring from its bench players but may be on its way to solving that problem. Jabbar Williams, a varsity player last year who missed every Big Reds game so far, returned to score 11 points off the bench. Ryan Koppelman also had 11 points and E.J. Bates added 10 points.

Ypsilanti uses balance to trip Pioneer, 78-64

By PAUL BEAUDRY
Deputy Sports Editor

Ann Arbor Pioneer's Keith Wade put on a one-man show at Ypsilanti High School Friday night, scoring 19 of his game-high 28 points in the fourth quarter.

But basketball is a team game and that was why the host Braves routed the Pioneers, 78-64.

Ten of the 13 Braves who played scored as Ypsilanti improved to 8-2 overall and 2-1 in the South Central Conference.

Wade, meanwhile, was the only player who could bust through for double figures for the Pioneers (5-6, 0-4).

"They can play 10-12 players deep and we just can't match that depth," said Pioneer coach Harry Hayward. "We tried to give Jason and Matt (Essell) a break, but we don't have anyone who can handle the ball like they do. They can go four deep at the guard."

Center Shannon Williams led the Braves with 15 points, while forward Wendell Rodgers and guard Marlos Long — wearing a matched set of shoes for the first time in five games — had 14 each.

Once again, 3-pointers helped the Braves. Long rained in four in the first half, while Williams had a pair and Darell Brooks added another.

"They were getting off the 3-point shots. With us in a man-to-man, those are difficult to stop," said Hayward.

The Braves, who travel to Willow Run Tuesday, had bulled through to a 68-43 lead in the fourth quarter before Wade took it upon himself to make the game closer.

Ypsilanti coach Bob Rowley had cleared the bench at the midpoint of the period when Wade went to work.

He stole the ball four times for lay-ins to cut the margin to 68-53 with three minutes left before Rowley could get his starters back in.

Wade stole the ball two more times for baskets and added a lay-up to help cut the margin to 75-64 before leaving the game with 19 seconds left.

"He did a good job at the end of the game, but the key is our starters pretty much held him in check when they were in," said Rowley. "Overall I was pleased. This is the best game we've played overall from start to finish this year. We stopped their passing and shut down their guards."

"Wade took it upon himself to make the score respectable and he did that," said Hayward. "He made up his mind to play the way he can."

Tigers hold off Trenton comeback

By RAY SAARI
Press Special Writer

TRENTON — Trenton claimed a moral victory but Belleville won the game and finished the first half of the Wolverine A Conference with a clean slate, dusting off the Trojans 59-52 here Friday night.

But it wasn't easy.

After holding the upper hand for three periods, the Tigers made a series of unforced errors and gave away half their 19-point lead with four minutes go in the game and had to go into an uncharactertistic stall offense over the last two minutes to preserve the victory.

A characteristic early surge gave the Tigers 22-12 lead at the end of the first period.

The defensive battle started in the second period as Belleville was held to 13 points but stretched its lead to 35-22 at halftime.

The Trojans' half-court defense again took its toll in the third, but Belleville took a 50-33 lead into the final eight minutes before Trenton made its final surge with the help of Tiger turnovers.

In two minutes the Tigers made five unforced errors, giving the Trojans their upset opportunity. With 4:56 left, three straight Belleville turnovers cut its lead to 10.

Belleville then went to the stall, holding the ball for almost a minute before another turnover set up a 3-pointer from Trenton's Chris Mace which made it 57-52.

But that was the end of the rally. Ron Hunter made two free throws with less than a minute to go to relieve the pressure, and the Tigers held on for their seventh league victory.

Hunter led the Tigers and all scorers with 26 points. Derrick Boles added 13 points, six on putbacks, and had 13 rebounds. The Trojans had two players in double figures, Joe Biedenbach finishing with 13 and Paul Broughton added 10.

Neely does whatever it takes for the Hurons to win.

EMU, BG get to the point in early-season showdown

By STEVE REPKO
Press Sports Editor

It was proven last Wednesday that Lorenzo Neely doesn't have to score a bundle of points for Eastern Michigan to win.

Can the same be said of Bowling Green's Clinton Venable?

That should be one of the more interesting subplots today when the Hurons are host to Bowling Green in an early-season Mid-American Conference basketball showdown.

Tipoff in Bowen Field House is scheduled for 3 p.m. or 30 minutes after the conclusion of the BG-EMU women's game, which begins at 1 p.m.

The men's battle features the teams picked to finish 1-2 in the MAC preseason poll, the league's three top scorers and its best two point guards.

And what happens with the latter will have a major bearing on the outcome.

"That's obviously a big key matchup," EMU coach Ben Braun told the audience at Friday's EMU Tipoff Luncheon at the Spaghetti Bender. "Clinton Venable and Lorenzo Neely are two of the better guards in the league and even the nation."

Both are lightening-quick seniors who like to penetrate the lane to get their offenses going and both play the kind of "in-your-shirt" defense which can take an opponent out of its rhythm.

The major difference between the two is scoring. Venable ranks No. 2 in the MAC by averaging an even 19 points per game while Neely averages 11.6.

But because the Hurons have had the best-balanced team in the league to date — all five starters average in double figures — Neely has demonstrated the ability to do whatever it takes for his team to win.

Last Wednesday he chose to concentrate on defense and did it so well that he held Sean Waters, Central Michigan's leading scorer, to only three second-half points as the Hurons rallied from a 10-point deficit and edged the Chippewas 63-61.

It was a performance which prompted CMU coach Charlie Coles to call Neely the player of the game despite the fact Neely scored only two points.

"I hope he feels good about that," Braun said. "I think he derived a lot of satisfaction out of that."

Venable has been the leading scorer for the Falcons, 9-5 overall and 3-1 in the MAC, in six games — including 27- and 25-point performances in BG's last two outings.

Mental anguish

War is on minds of many athletes with ties to Desert Storm

By The Associated Press

The physical part of sports hasn't changed since the first rocket was fired in Iraq. The mental part is another story.

Not only are most athletes, like almost everyone else, vitally interested in the events in the Persian Gulf war, but many have emotional links to the fighting that are keeping them from concentrating totally on their jobs in the playing arena.

Carlton Bailey, a reserve linebacker for the Buffalo Bills, and Johnie Cooks, a backup linebacker for the New York Giants, are good examples.

Bailey, whose father is a chief warrant officer in the 260th Army Reserve Unit from Baltimore, said, "Sometimes it's hard to concentrate on football. When I come to work, I try not to think about it, but when I go home to my apartment, it's hard not to dwell on it."

Cooks came home Wednesday night to find his wife watching reports of the start of hostilities on television and crying.

"My wife's brother and his wife are over there, and we're both worried about it," Cooks said. "I was up 'til 3:30 (Thursday) morning trying to find out what's going on."

Cooks, who also has an uncle and a cousin in the Middle East, said, "You don't want to see people being killed. It's a terrible thing, but we're behind what our country is doing."

Both Bailey and Cooks are preparing for NFL conference championship games Sunday that could lead to an appearance in the 25th Super Bowl a week later. The Bills play at home against the Los Angeles Raiders, while the Giants will be in San Francisco to play the two-time defending champion 49ers.

Some people are saying the games should not be played, but, so far, the NFL has kept its schedule intact.

"It would be better to be playing and give people something else to think about for three hours," Cooks said. "We're sad about what's going on, but it's something we've got to deal with."

Bailey said, "I got a letter from my dad two weeks ago just telling me to do my best as far as the playoffs are concerned."

A church service and prayers for peace replaced a pep rally for the Bills on Friday, but players and fans who attended the service said they hoped the playoffs would go on.

More than 100 people attended the interfaith service at Buffalo's Episcopal cathedral at the urging of the Bills and Erie County officials, who canceled the pep rally hours after fighting began in the Persian Gulf.

Bill Polian, the team's general manager, attended the service, along with cornerback Chris Hale and wide receiver Don Beebe, two players who will not play Sunday because of injuries.

Pistons' win streak stopped by Phoenix

PHOENIX (AP) — Tom Chambers and Kevin Johnson scored 27 points apiece and the Phoenix Suns held Detroit scoreless for the final 3:05 as the Suns ended the Pistons' 11-game winning streak with a 103-102 victory Friday night.

Jeff Hornacek added 15 points and Johnson had 10 assists for the Suns, who won their sixth straight game.

Joe Dumars, playing despite a hyperextended toe, paced the Pistons with 23 points while Mark Aguirre had 19 and Vinnie Johnson 18 points and 11 assists. Detroit played without Isiah Thomas, who sat out the game with a pulled left groin and strained right shoulder.

Willow Run comes back to take first SAC victory

ECORSE — Willow Run rallied from a fourth-quarter deficit to take its first Suburban Athletic Conference win of the season here Friday, a 75-65 decision over Ecorse.

The Flyers (1-3 SAC, 2-6 overall) were down, 56-55, entering the fourth quarter. In that period, Willow Run scored 11 points from the free throw line and outscored Ecorse, 20-9.

"We wore them down physically," said Flyer coach Fred Hall. "We kept running the ball up and down the court. They were getting frustrated.

Shermayne Mackson scored most of his 27 points in the first half, while Charles Cole took over in the second half, where he scored the bulk of his 19 points

Atlanta hires Lajoie as special scout

ATLANTA — The Atlanta Braves said Friday that they hired former Detroit Tigers general manager Bill Lajoie as a special assignment scout.

"I'm absolutely delighted to add a man of Bill Lajoie's caliber and qualifications to the Braves' organization," said Atlanta general manager John Schuerholz. "He will add tremendously to our efforts in the areas of scouting and player evaluation."

Lajoie, 56, was named the Tigers' vice president for baseball in 1978 and became general manager in 1983. One year later, Detroit won its first World Series since 1968. He resigned Jan. 7 from the Tigers' organization, saying he wanted to remain in baseball but in a position with less full-time responsibility.

Lajoie played 10 seasons in the minor leagues, then joined the Cincinnati Reds in 1965 as a scout. He became a Detroit scout in 1968.

N.C.-N.C. State game rescheduled for Feb. 7

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. — North Carolina and North Carolina State, who postponed an Atlantic Coast Conference basketball game here on Wednesday night after the Gulf war began, have rescheduled the contest for Feb. 7.

North Carolina-Asheville will play at home against Coastal Carolina on Feb. 13 in a rescheduled game. The meeting was postponed Thursday night in response to the war.

Postlewait's ace highlights LPGA opener

MONTEGO BAY, Jamaica — Kathy Postlewait, who trails leader Sarah McGuire after Friday's opening round, looks forward to a "putting contest" on the second day of the $500,000 LPGA Jamaica Classic.

McGuire shot a 4-under-par 67 for a one-stroke lead as the season-opening tournament began at the Tryall Golf and Country Club. But Postlewait stole the show, shooting a hole-in-one on the par-3 sixth.

"The greens were soft today — not fast, just a good speed," said Postlewait, who carded a 70. "I think this tournament will end up a putting contest."

The eagle marked the first hole-in-one in the three-year-old tournament and only the second struck on the course. The first time was in 1983, by Nancy Lopez in the Mazda Champions tournament.

McGuire started quietly by parring the first four holes. She birded the fifth, sixth and seventh to finish the front nine on three under at 31. She bogeyed the 13th before coming up with birdies on the 14th and 15th for a one-under 36 on the back nine.

Sitting second after the first 18 holes of the 54-hole tournament was defending champion Patty Sheehan, who shot a 68. Jill Briles-Hinton was with Postlewait at 70.

Jane Geddes, Cindy Schreyer and Cindy Rarick were at 71.

Security tightened for NFC Championship

BURLINGAME, Calif. — The NFL said "all necessary precautions" will be taken in regards to the security surrounding the NFC Championship game on Sunday.

The San Francisco 49ers play the New York Giants at Candlestick Park in San Francisco for the conference title.

"We are taking all necessary precautions to ensure that Sunday's NFC Championship between the New York Giants and the San Francisco 49ers will be a safe and enjoyable experience for everyone," the league said in a release issued Friday.

The NFL said it has received no information to suggest there is or will be any threat to Candlestick Park or the area, but still plan several extra security measures.

Replacements named for AFC Pro Bowl squad

NEW YORK — Linebacker Mike Johnson of the Cleveland Browns and offensive tackle Will Wolford of the Buffalo Bills were named to the AFC Pro Bowl squad on Friday as replacements for a pair of injured players previously named.

Johnson, a sixth-year pro from Virginia Tech, steps in for the second straight year for Miami Dolphins linebacker John Offerdahl who has an injured arch. The Browns linebacker, who led his team with 161 tackles, has appeared in two previous Pro Bowls.

Wolford, a fifth-year player from Vanderbilt, will make his first Pro Bowl appearance, joining eight other Buffalo players on the AFC team. He replaces offensive tackle Anthony Munoz of the Cincinnati Bengals, who has a shoulder injury.

The Pro Bowl game is scheduled Feb. 3 in Honolulu.

Ryan might settle for coordinator's job

PHILADELPHIA — Buddy Ryan said Friday he's still looking for a head coaching job in the NFL but would consider a defensive coordinator's position under certain circumstances.

After being fired last week as head coach of the Philadelphia Eagles, Ryan said he and his wife, Joan, would go home to their farm in Kentucky and raise horses rather than become an assistant again. Ryan was an assistant in the league for 18 years prior to taking the Eagles' job in 1986.

But Ryan was spotted Thursday in Mobile, Ala., site of the Senior Bowl, talking to Minnesota Vikings head coach Jerry Burns, who needs a defensive coordinator to succeed the fired Floyd Peters.

"I sat down with Jerry in Mobile and we had a few hot toddies, talked and laughed. We did not talk about a job," said Ryan, reached Friday at his home across the river in Cherry Hill, N.J.

Ryan was dismissed by Eagles owner Norman Braman after compiling a 43-38-1 record during his five-year tenure, including first-round playoff losses the last three years.

Kronberger increases women's World Cup lead

MERIBEL, France — Petra Kronberger of Austria, skiing down the tough 1992 Olympic course, won the women's World Cup downhill Friday and increased her lead in the overall standings.

The victory was Kronberger's second in the downhill this season and her seventh of the current tour. She also won the last World Cup race, a slalom last weekend in Kranjska Gora, Yugoslavia.

Nets tip struggling Celts; Hawks stop Bulls' streak

By The Associated Press

Mookie Blaylock and Derrick Coleman helped New Jersey survive a late Boston comeback as the Nets ended an 11-game losing streak with a 111-106 victory Friday night over the struggling Celtics.

Boston (29-8) lost its third straight game and is 3-3 since Larry Bird was sidelined indefinitely with back problems. New Jersey (11-25) got its first victory since Dec. 21.

Blaylock matched his season-high of 26 points while Coleman and Reggie Theus had 24 each.

Boston, which has lost two in a row at home after winning 18 straight, was led by Reggie Lewis with 31 points and Kevin McHale with 18 points and 13 rebounds.

Hawks 114, Bulls 105: Dominique Wilkins scored 17 of his 34 points in the third period, powering Atlanta over Chicago and snapping the Bulls' seven-game winning streak.

Sidney Moncrief added a season-high 16 points, 11 in the final period, for the Hawks, who won their 12th consecutive game at home.

Michael Jordan had 30 points for the Bulls, who lost for only the third time in 18 games.

Warriors 141, 76ers 138 (OT): Tim Hardaway scored a career-high 40 points and Mitch Richmond added 35 as Golden State defeated Philadelphia in overtime.

Chris Mullin scored 29 points, eight in overtime, for the Warriors, who won their fourth straight road game in gaining their fifth victory in six games. Hersey Hawkins had 30 points, Ron Anderson 24 and Armon Gilliam 23 for Philadelphia, while Rod Higgins scored 19 for the Warriors.

Heat 107, Knicks 86: Sherman Douglas had 20 points and 11 assists and Miami opened a 20-point lead before holding off a late New York rally.

Grant Long added 18 points and Billy Thompson 17 for the Heat, which led 75-55 after three quarters.

Patrick Ewing had 23 points for the Knicks.

Jazz 106, Cavaliers 99 (OT): John Stockton scored five points in overtime as Utah beat Cleveland, the ninth win in 11 games for the Jazz.

Stockton had 27 points and 19 assists.

Karl Malone scored 26 points and Jeff Malone 22 for the Jazz, which led for the entire second half until Daugherty tied it 95-95.

Larry Nance scored 27 points and Daugherty 20 for the Cavaliers, who have lost 12 of 13 games.

Hornets 117, Spurs 110: Rex Chapman had 35 points and Johnny Newman scored 11 of his 30 in the final 3:36 as Charlotte stunned San Antonio.

Mike Gminski added 25 points for the Hornets, who shot a franchise record 60 percent from the field in winning for just the fourth trime in 17 games on the road.

Hull will miss NHL All-Star Game

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Hockey Writer

CHICAGO — When the NHL holds its All-Star Game today, it will be without a "very disappointed" Brett Hull.

Hull, the league's top goalscorer who received the most votes in the fan balloting, pulled out of the game because of a sprained left ankle.

"I just can't do it," Hull said Friday. "We tried everything to cushion the ankle, but nothing worked. I would have loved to play."

Hull was one of three late withdrawals. Montreal's Brian Skrudland won't play because of a broken foot and Boston's Chris Nilan is out with an ankle injury.

Hull will be replaced by teammate Adam Oates, Skrudland by Montreal's Denis Savard and Nilan by Boston's Dave Christian.

"It would have been fun to have a Hull again on the home-team Chicago ice," Hull said, referring to his father, Bobby, who played most of his NHL career with the Blackhawks.

"But I just can't play. I tried to play last night (Thursday) against Montreal and was useless."

Hull injured the ankle Tuesday night against the Washington Capitals.

"I landed hard on the ankle," he said. "At first I thought it might have been broken. But it's just a sprain.

"It doesn't hurt when I walk around on it, only when I put my skates on."

Hull had been looking forward to the All-Star Game, especially since he was the peoples' choice in the balloting. Hull, trying to become only the fifth player in NHL history to score 50 goals in his first 50 games, received 432,879 votes from the fans — the highest total since All-Star fan balloting began six seasons ago.

"I wanted to play in this game," Hull said. "But I have to look at the whole season. The season is more important than this game."

Hull said he expected to play in the Blues' next regular-season game, Tuesday against Minnesota.

Bobby Hull expressed disappointment that his son would not be in the All-Star game.

"I'm not only sorry that he won't be playing, but that this might hurt his chances to get 50 goals in 50 games," he said.

Brett Hull has 46 goals in 47 games this season.

Today's game at Chicago Stadium will cap an All-Star weekend that includes a skills competition and a "Heroes of Hockey" game Friday night featuring many of the league's oldtime stars.

Not only were they in town to play hockey, they were in Chicago to voice their displeasure over their pension plan.

Several of the oldtimers gathered at a downtown hotel to speak to the NHL Players Committee about the situation, but were turned away.

Carl Brewer, a former defenseman with the Toronto Maple Leafs, said that the players planned to file a $26 million law suit against the league in their pension dispute.

There even was talk about the oldtimers boycotting Friday night's game, but that never developed.

As Bobby Hull said: "The fans shouldn't be penalized for this. After all (the pension dispute) isn't their fault."

The war in the Persian Gulf also will have an impact on the All-Star Game. Players will wear United Nations decals on their helmets and the NHL said that extra security measures would be taken at Chicago Stadium as a precaution against possible terrorism.

Networks will break away from playoffs if necessary

By RICK WARNER
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK — Sunday's NFL playoff telecasts could feature action on the battlefield as well as the playing field.

NBC and CBS plan to keep viewers updated on the Persian Gulf war before, during and after their telecasts of the conference championship games. If there are major developments in the gulf during the games, it could mean frequent interruptions for news reports or even a decision to completely scrap the football coverage.

"Whatever the news division tells us to do, we will do," said Ed Markey, a spokesman for NBC Sports, which will show the AFC title game between the Los Angeles Raiders and Buffalo Bills.

"It's not something we can plan for. This is a new experience for all of us."

CBS, which will televise the NFC championship game between the New York Giants and San Francisco 49ers, has the same policy.

"We're being flexible," said Susan Kerr, a spokeswoman for CBS Sports. "We plan to cover the game, but we're obviously cooperating with the news division. If events dictate that we break into the game for a news update, then that's what we'll do."

There has been speculation that the networks might not televise the playoff games at all if major groundfighting breaks out in the gulf. But network officials won't discuss the possibility.

"I guess anything's possible, but right now our plans are to televise the game," Kerr said.

Katherine McQuay, a spokeswoman for NBC News, said a decision to switch from game to war coverage would be a "judgment call" by news officials.

> 'We plan to cover the game, but we're obviously cooperating with the news division. If events dictate that we break into the game for a news update, then that's what we'll do.'
>
> — SUSAN KERR

"If they feel a development is important enough to break into the game, then we'll break into the game," she said.

The NFL's television contracts reportedly contain a "crisis clause" that allows the networks to break away from games in the event of a major news story. The league and the networks declined to discuss their contracts Friday, so it's unclear whether such a situation would result in refunds by either party.

NFL Commissioner Paul Tagliabue said Thursday that he expects the playoff games to be played Sunday. But he indicated that the plans are subject to change, saying the league will continue to "follow events in the Middle East and take those into account as we approach kickoff."

NBC, CBS and ABC halted their 24-hour coverage of the gulf war Friday afternoon, switching to regular programs. However, they are planning regular news updates and other special programs on the war.

NBC and CBS are planning to deal with the gulf war in their pregame and halftime shows on Sunday. CBS is taping a pregame story on players' reactions to the war, while NBC is expanding its halftime show to 15 minutes to include a gulf update.

U-M icers rout BG, 9-1

By The Associated Press

David Roberts had three goals, two of them during an unbroken string of seven Michigan tallies, in a 9-1 CCHA romp over host Bowling Green on Friday night.

Michigan (19-5-3 overall, 16-4-3 CCHA) led 2-0 just 3 minutes into the first period on goals by Don Stone and Roberts. Bowling Green (11-14-2, 9-12-2) got its lone goal from Martin Jiranek at 13:01 of the first period.

Ted Kramer, Mike Helber and Denny Felsner then scored for the Wolverines before Roberts tallied his pair and Mike Stone added one more.

The two teams meet tonight at 7:30 at Yost Ice Arena.

Lake Superior St. 3, Michigan St. 3: Michigan State's Mike Gilmore made 39 saves while Lake Superior State's Darrin Madeley made just 14, but the Lakers had to settle for a CCHA tie with the Spartans.

Lake Superior (20-3-4 overall, 17-2-4 CCHA) took a 2-0 lead early in the first period on goals by Tim Breslin and Tim Harris. Michigan State (12-10-5, 9-7-5) got a goal from Kerry Russell at 13:57, then tied it on Jason Woolley's power-play score at 17:05 of the second.

Ohio St. 6, Miami, Ohio 5: Stacey Hartnall scored two third-period goals and Matt Brandt followed with the winner as Ohio State opened a CCHA weekend series with a victory over Miami.

Ferris St. 8, Air Force 5: Rod Taylor and Aaron Ast had two goals apiece as Ferris State outscored Air Force.

"He's always been a scorer for them," Braun said, "but they've got some capable scorers you can't ignore because of Venable's capability of finding the open man."

The main beneficiary of Venable's six assists a game is forward Joe Moore, who ranks third in the MAC with an 18.3 average.

"Joe Moore might be the best athlete in the league," Braun said. "He's very good in transition."

EMU, of course, also has center Marcus Kennedy — who leads the MAC in scoring with a 19.7 average. Kennedy scored 23 at CMU, his final two coming with a slam off a perfect lob pass from teammate Charles Thomas which put the Hurons ahead to stay.

Kennedy also leads the MAC — and is second in the nation —with his 71.3 shooting percentage.

A victory today would leave the Hurons, 11-3 overall and 5-0 in the MAC, two games ahead in the loss column of ahead every other team except Miami of Ohio, which is 4-1 and idle today.

HURONOTES:

A moment of silence will be observed before today's game in tribute to armed forces participating in Operation Desert Storm.

EMU athletic director Gene Smith said the Hurons will wear badges honoring the troops and that different security measures will be employed to ensure an orderly crowd.

Braun, who said he has friends in both Israel and Saudi Arabia, favors the continuance of sports unless the war worsens.

"I think we can be sensitive to the situation and care and pray," he said.

———

It appears now that sophomore forward Chris Pipkin, who hasn't played since suffering ligament damage to his right ankle during EMU's first game, will be redshirted and not play again this season.

"His ankle just hasn't responded (to treatment)," Braun said.

If Pipkin is redshirted, he'd have three years of eligibility remaining.

Gorbachev aide quits, says crackdowns are criminal

MOSCOW (AP) — The top economic adviser for Mikhail Gorbachev has left his post after writing a public letter accusing the Soviet president of criminal acts to prop up "a regime in its death throes."

A spokesman said Friday that economic adviser Nikolai Petrakov was out of a job, joining a growing list of reformers who have left Gorbachev's inner circle or been fired as Gorbachev has begun using more hard-line tactics. It was not immediately clear whether Petrakov had resigned or been removed.

Others who have left include Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze, economist Stanislav Shatalin and Interior Minister Vadim Bakatin. Additionally, Politburo member Alexander Yakovlev, considered the godfather of Soviet reforms, has been dropped quietly from the government.

Of the reformers who have left Gorbachev's team, the departure of Shevardnadze was the most spectacular. He resigned last month, warning that "dictatorship was coming" to the Soviet Union. He later said in an interview he feared a repeat of military crackdowns that left scores dead in Georgia in 1989 and in Azerbaijan last year.

Petrakov could not be reached immediately for comment, but two associates said Gorbachev had been enraged by the open letter, which criticized him for tolerating the military attack Sunday against a Lithuanian television station that left 14 people dead.

"A regime in its death throes has made a last-ditch stand: economic reform has been blocked, censorship of the media reinstated, brazen demagogy revived, and an open war on the (15 Soviet) republics declared," said the letter, published by the weekly paper Moscow News.

"The events in Lithuania can be unambiguously classified as criminal," the letter said. It said that Gorbachev "justified or approved the tactics ... in Lithuania."

The letter was signed by Petrakov and 29 members of the Moscow News board of directors. The directors include many leading Soviet reformers.

An enraged Gorbachev cited the Moscow News letter Wednesday when he asked the Supreme Soviet legislature to suspend temporarily a new law guaranteeing freedom of the press.

He later backed off that proposal when deputies, including a journalist, objected.

The legislature voted 275-32 with 30 abstentions to have its presidium and a legislative panel on glasnost, or reforms, work out measures to ensure objectivity in all Soviet media.

The letter signed by Petrakov appealed to the 15 Soviet republics and journalists to resist the dictatorship of which Shevardnadze warned.

"While opposing the onslaught of dictatorship and totalitarianism, we are pinning our hopes on the leadership of the Union Republics," it said.

It told journalists: "If you lack the courage or the opportunity to tell the truth, at least abstain from telling lies!"

The letter bore the headline: "Unwilling to Go, the Regime Stoops to Crime."

Bakatin, whom hard-liners forced from the post of interior minister last December, also described the crackdown in Lithuania as illegal.

"The absolute unconstitutionality and illegality of the actions that were taken, as a result of which people were killed, is obvious," Bakatin was quoted as saying in interview published Wednesday by the newspaper Komsomolskaya Pravda.

"It is not understandable why the president of the country did not sharply and directly disassociate himself from the abuses that took place in Vilnius," Bakatin said.

Bakatin was replaced by former KGB Gen. Boris Pugo.

Two other reformers of the early Gorbachev era, Yakovlev and Shatalin, were not appointed to new posts after the Presidential Council on which they sat was dissolved. Yakovlev, arguably the most important of those who have left office, departed without a word, although the reformist press claims he was forced out.

Shatalin said in an interview published this week that he should have fought harder last fall against hardliners who torpedoed his 500-day plan for market reforms.

"In October, I sensed that the country's political and economic course began to veer to the right," Shatalin said in an interview with Moscow News.

"I no longer consider myself one of the Gorbachev team," he said, adding, "I believe that if the president relies for support on the leftists, he can withstand any pressure."

Gorbachev came to power in March 1985.

The people of Latvia guard the most important locations in their capital, Riga, while watching developments in the Gulf War on CNN television. The Baltic republics are under virtual seige by a resurgence of Stalinism.

Lithuania claims support by U.S.

VILNIUS, U.S.S.R. (AP) — Lithuanian President Vytautas Landsbergis said Friday he had received U.S. assurance of support for his Baltic republic, which is trying to buck a crackdown by Soviet troops.

In Washington, President Bush told a news conference he had spoken with Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev and called for a peaceful solution in the Baltics.

The Soviet crackdown had prompted the U.S. administration to reconsider holding a summit between Bush and Gorbachev in Moscow on Feb. 11-13. But Marlin Fitzwater, the White House spokesman, said Friday the summit is still on.

That didn't prevent U.S. officials, however, from unleashing a barrage of criticism at the Soviet media, saying tension in Lithuania had been unnecessarily heightened by biased reporting.

In the Baltic republic of Estonia, residents of the capital, Tallinn, blocked roads to the hilltop parliament building with stone barricades. Russian-speaking workers pressing the Estonian government to resign went on strike at 16 large factories, a news report said.

Soviet forces have seized several key buildings in Lithuania, which declared independence in March. Fourteen people were killed in a Soviet military assault.

The three Baltic republics — Lithuania, Estonia and Latvia — were independent between the two world wars. Estonia and Latvia are also seeking independence, but they have been more restrained in their efforts than Lithuania.

At an evening news conference Friday, Landsbergis said he had met with George A. Krol, the U.S. consul based in Leningrad. He quoted Krol as telling him, "The United States guarantees that at this time in our crisis, the United States is on our side."

Eastern Airlines shuts down

MIAMI (AP) — Eastern Airlines shut down Friday night after 62 years of flying, ending a battle against mounting debts, militant unions and industry-wide woes.

The airline, which was operating under bankruptcy protection, announced in a statement that all flights were canceled as of midnight EST Friday. The airline had gates at Detroit Metropolitan Airport.

Eastern officials declined late Friday to elaborate, saying trustee Martin R. Shugrue Jr. would hold a news conference Saturday.

An Eastern official speaking on condition of anonymity said the company remained in Chapter 11 bankruptcy reorganization, which meant it hadn't filed for Chapter 7 liquidation. Shugrue would determine that step, the official said.

"There is no more scheduled service," the official added.

The 18,000 Eastern employees were told not to report to work, unless called by supervisors, with the exception of reservations agents, who were told to report at their normally scheduled times. Eastern said ticket-holders would receive full refunds, but that it was also working out arrangements with other carriers to honor tickets.

Shugrue, who had been trying desperately to find investors or sell assets to ease Eastern's cash troubles, returned to Miami on Friday to prepare for the end of service.

At least one other airline, American, made a quick bid to pick up passengers who had booked flights on Eastern.

American said that beginning at 5 a.m. on Saturday, it would honor all Eastern tickets for the same class of travel, subject to seat availability.

American also said that it had asked the Transportation Department for emergency clearance to operate Eastern's routes from Miami-Tampa to Toronto and from New York's LaGuardia to Montreal.

Apartheid officer loses case

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — A judge ruled in a defamation suit Friday that two newspapers were probably justified in linking a police officer to alleged death squads.

His decision in favor of the newspapers raised anew the question of the white-led government tactics against its opponents. The opinion clashed with findings of a government commission that concluded there was no proof of organized death squads.

The judge's ruling also struck a major blow for press freedom in this country where the media has often been repressed.

The policeman, Lt. Gen. Johan Neethling, sued the Vrye Weekblad and Weekly Mail newspapers after they printed the allegations in 1989 that he supplied poison to kill activists opposed to the official system of racial separation, known as apartheid. A former police officer who claimed to have taken part in death squad activities made the accusation.

In his ruling that took two days to read, Judge Johan Kriegler described Neethling's accuser, Dirk Coetzee, as a "self-confessed hoodlum" — but said his stories were believable.

Court rules comatose woman must stay

MOUNT VERNON, Mo. (AP) — The father of a brain-damaged woman was barred by an appeals court Friday from moving her to Minnesota, where her life-support could be detached with less legal strife.

The Missouri Court of Appeals ruled Christine Busalacchi, 20, could not be moved from a state hospital until the panel could review the case. A hearing date was not immediately scheduled.

The injunction supersedes a lower court decision that allowed Pete Busalacchi to take his daughter from the Missouri Rehabilitation Center, where a recent landmark right-to-die case was centered.

State attorneys hurriedly appealed the lower court ruling when Busalacchi appeared at the hospital Friday to move his daughter.

"I'm disappointed," Busalacchi said. "I fully expected to leave here and take her to Minneapolis. I'm the guy who put her in here. I should be the guy who decides where she goes from here."

Don Lamkins, director of the center, said the state would fight to prevent Busalacchi from moving his daughter "as far as the legal system can go."

Busalacchi wants his daughter, who was brain damaged in a 1987 car crash, to be examined by Dr. Ronald Cranford, a neurologist at the Hennepin County Medical Center in Minneapolis.

Cranford is a medical ethicist who favors terminating life-support in cases where brain damage is extensive and irreversible. He says there is only a "one in a billion" chance that Busalacchi could recover.

But state officials contended in affidavits that recent examinations by two doctors show Ms. Busalacchi has some cognitive ability, disputing a long-standing diagnosis that she is in a persistent vegetative state.

Also Friday, the Minnesota governor's office sent a letter to the Missouri Health Department saying it supports efforts to keep Busalacchi in Missouri.

"The reports of her condition are in extreme conflict, and the need for further evaluation seems of the utmost importance," the letter said.

On Wednesday, County Judge Lewis Kohn dismissed a temporary order preventing Busalacchi from moving his daughter.

When Busalacchi arrived at the hospital Friday, officials refused to release her, saying they hadn't seen a copy of the dismissal order or gotten approval from the state.

Health Department Director John Bagby said, "I ordered that she not be moved because I wasn't sure of our legal ground."

The case comes on the heels of the Nancy Cruzan case, a right-to-die legal battle that led to a landmark ruling by the U.S. Supreme Court in June. Cruzan was hospitalized at the Missouri Rehabilitation Center.

The Supreme Court ruled in the Cruzan case that states have the right to require "clear and convincing" evidence of a patient's wishes before terminating treatment.

Ms. Cruzan's parents produced such evidence and had her feeding tube removed Dec. 14. She died Dec. 26. Busalacchi has been unable to document the wishes of his daughter, who was a teen-ager when she suffered brain damage.

Something to interest everyone, everyday

Your Horoscope

Tomorrow's forecast

By Jeane Dixon

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Choose your attire with extra care today. A romantic attraction plays a major role in your plans. You will learn the truth about a special relationship. Dine with an old friend tonight.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Plan a family outing that will help you bridge the generation gap. You could be too gullible. Avoid taking unnecessary risks in romance or finance. Protect your loved ones' future.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): By paying attention to the details of a friend's problem, you will be able to offer excellent advice. A romantic evening could be in store for you. Avoid pressing for a commitment.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Your intuition could be off today; act accordingly. Relationships with the opposite sex will go smoothly. Someone keeps a promise. A great evening to entertain at home. Wear something elegant.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Being overly critical of someone's efforts could cause a serious rift in your relationship. Gentle encouragement is the key to improving this person's performance. Replace bad habits with good ones.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): One distraction after another offers itself today. Seek pleasure in the company of your friends and loved ones. A newcomer could make romantic overtures. An exciting evening awaits you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Influential people will be impressed with your realistic approach to a ticklish situation. A telephone call will bring wonderful news. This is what you have been waiting for!

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): A wonderful day for family life. You discover an important truth while on a special outing. A self-improvement project will make you look and feel terrific. Go ahead and give it a try!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Avoid using sarcasm with your loved ones and you will be in a better position to help them. The advice you offer will be more appreciated than you know. Be more affectionate.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Do not be taken in by a sob story; they got themselves into this mess and they will have to get themselves out. Offer a young person practical suggestions for finding employment.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Postpone decisions of a financial nature. What looks like a sure bet is really a scam. Donate your talents to a campaign to help the less fortunate. Acts of kindness will be richly rewarded.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): A good day to brush up on the art of relaxation! The presence of authority types at a social event will not suit you. Spend the evening at home with a good book.

TODAY'S CHILDREN are eager to please the adults in their lives. These Aquarians will not make waves unless they sense bias or discrimination -- then watch out! Skillful debaters, they enjoy arguing both sides of an issue. Many of them will give serious thought to a career in law or politics. They have the courage of their convictions and want others to join their cause. These Aquarians will remain close to their parents even after leaving the nest.
